Best practice examples of marking in Science

A new approach to marking and assessment
Unpick Ofsted's criteria for marking and assessment
Surpass Ofsted's expectations for workbook inspections
Prof. Hattie's research and its impact on effective teaching

A realist's guide to marking and assessment
Meaningful "marking dialogue" to produce lasting change
Develop a consistent approach to marking
Implement peer- and self-assessment techniques
Personalise learning through:
   – differentiated feedback
   – qualitative feedback
Way to make target setting meaningful in Science
Demonstrate progress from marking and feedback

Ensure all children know what they must do to improve

"Very useful to look at marking from an Ofsted perspective - seeing emphasis on process, progress and targets to improve confidence and self assessment."
Debbie Guthrie, Queen Elizabeths Hospital School

"Has given me the confidence to go away and create a policy that is effective, functional and actually works!"
Pippa Kettle, Idsall School
