

Thrive Under Short, Sharp Inspections

- 1 in 4 'Good' schools are downgraded under short inspections, be sure it's not you
- Ensure your school and pupils are not "coasting"
- Key strategies for robust, yet painless, preparation
- A toolkit to maintain or exceed your 'Good' rating under proportionate inspections

Ken Reid, OBE

Ken is at the forefront of inspection changes and will share his knowledge with you in a highly practical manner. In 2010 he was awarded an OBE for Services to Education. He is a regular contributor to the TES and other educational publications, and has written countless articles, research reports and books.

The new challenge to schools from Ofsted

An in-depth look at how the inspections are being conducted
 Discover what the change of chief inspector means for Ofsted visits
 Clarify what the focus is Understand what the possible outcomes are Know how to prepare

Infuse your preparation with Ofsted know-how

First impressions: getting your website right (the first thing inspectors look at)
 A key focus: demonstrating the breadth and balance of your curriculum
 Data: providing the most up-to-date snapshot performance
 Self-evaluation: know your priorities and areas of focus
 Professional dialogue: utilise the discussions between heads and inspectors
 Harnessing the 'parent factor': awareness and appreciation of their views
 Next steps: use these inspections as a springboard to Outstanding

Practical ideas for 'light touch' inspections

- Summary of key changes
- A map of timelines
- A checklist for preparation
- Exemplar SEFs
- How to spot the signs of decline
- An action plan to implement after notification
